*In this desolate void, where sorrow reigns,
I wander lost, consumed by endless pains.
Memory's cruel caress evokes your face,
A bittersweet reminder of our stolen grace.*

Healing flows from depths where pain once thrived.*

A Phoenix rising from the depths I knew.

You cannot turn the tide.
This relentless tug and pull can not be stopped.
Grief overwhelms me,
tears me limb from limb.
Grief drags me under,
only to spit me out again.
You cannot turn the tide for me.

But you can anchor me,
you can be my rock to cling to,
Hold fast to me, hold me steady,
with you I can weather this storm
