The Silver Spurs Home was founded in 1999 by a group of former rodeo cowgirls who recognized the need for a place where retired performers could live with dignity and respect. The home is located on a 30-acre ranch in the town of Bandera, Texas, which is known as the "Cowboy Capital of the World."

The Silver Spurs Home provides its residents with a variety of amenities, including private and semi-private rooms, a dining room, a library, a recreation room, and a chapel. The home also has a full-time staff of nurses and social workers who provide 24-hour care to the residents.

The Silver Spurs Home is more than just a retirement home; it is a community. The residents share a common bond of having spent their lives in the rodeo arena. They enjoy spending time together, sharing stories, and reminiscing about their days on the circuit.

The Silver Spurs Home is also a place of healing. Many of the residents have experienced physical and emotional trauma during their rodeo careers. The home provides a safe and supportive environment where they can heal and recover from their injuries.

The Silver Spurs Home is a unique and inspiring place. It is a place where aging cowgirls can find refuge, respect, and a sense of community. The home is a testament to the strength and resilience of the women who have dedicated their lives to the sport of rodeo.

Meet the Residents of the Silver Spurs Home

The Silver Spurs Home is home to a diverse group of women who come from all walks of life. Some of the residents are former world champions, while others are simply women who loved to compete in rodeos. No matter their background, all of the residents share a common bond of having dedicated their lives to the sport of rodeo.

One of the most famous residents of the Silver Spurs Home is rodeo legend Jackie Crawford. Crawford was a world champion barrel racer and trick rider who competed in rodeos for over 40 years. She was inducted into the National Cowgirl Museum and Hall of Fame in 1995.

Another notable resident of the Silver Spurs Home is rodeo announcer Becky Hammond. Hammond was the first woman to announce a major rodeo in the United States. She has announced rodeos all over the world, including the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas.

The Silver Spurs Home is also home to a number of women who have worked behind the scenes in the rodeo industry. These women have served as rodeo judges, stock contractors, and rodeo secretaries. They have all played a vital role in the growth and success of the sport of rodeo.

The Silver Spurs Home's Impact on the Community
